

A TRUE HERO IN THE MARKETS: BOB MORIARTY'S MEMORABLE MOMENTS AND PREDICTIONS

Markets go up and markets go down year after year, but one man has stood steadfast through all of it: Bob Moriarty, a true American patriot and a pillar among the global investing community. Mr. Moriarty's legendary military career is only matched by his ability to see through the noise and find opportunities in the markets where others only see confusion.

There's a good chance that you're already familiar with Bob Moriarty's written works, which include two of my favorite books, The Art of Peace and Nobody Knows Anything. You might also be one of the many visitors to Mr. Moriarty's excellent websites: the precious metals information and analysis portal 321Gold.com and 321Energy.com, which covers the oil, gasoline, coal, natural gas, solar, wind, and nuclear energy markets.

A hero to many, Robert Moriarty humbly holds an incredible 14 international aviation records, and was a United States Marine F-4B and O-1 pilot with over 832 missions in Vietnam. He was a pilot at the age of 20 and a Captain in the Marines at age 22, and Mr. Bob Moriarty today remains one of the most highly decorated pilots in U.S. history.

Few living legends can match Mr. Moriarty's record as a world-class aviator: during 15-year career he ferried General Aviation aircraft all over the world, including more than 240 over-the-water deliveries. Bob Moriarty holds 14 International Aviation records, including Charles Lindbergh's record for time between New York to Paris in two different categories.

Moving from aviation to innovation, Bob Moriarty was an early adopter and pioneer in the Internet, as he and his wife Barbara began an online computer business back in 1996. In the early 2000s, Bob and Barbara started 321Gold.com, one of the first websites devoted to teaching people about investing in resource precious metal stocks.

A TRUE HERO IN THE MARKETS: BOB MORIARTY'S MEMORABLE MOMENTS AND PREDICTIONS

To this day, Robert and Barbara Moriarty still operate 321Gold.com along with 321Energy.com, and up to 100,000 people a day visit these websites. And he hasn't slowed down one bit, as Mr. Moriarty continues to travel to dozens of mining projects every year and then writes about them.

Visitors to Mr. Moriarty's websites and followers of his interviews and appearances have benefited from his wise and forward-thinking market calls and perspectives, as they have helped countless investors to time their positions properly for long-term upside.

One instance of this was back in early 2011, when Robert Moriarty advised extreme caution on oil when WTI crude had spiked, topping $120 per barrel. At that time, practically everyone was massively bullish on oil, thinking that it would just keep going up to the high heavens. Clearly they were wrong:

Bob Moriarty caught the top of the 2011 oil spike perfectly, potentially saving his listeners a great deal of pain and anguish as the price of oil petered out and then plunged below $30 a barrel.

At that same time in early 2011, Mr. Moriarty went big-time bullish on gold and silver. Precious metal followers need no explanation of what happened for the remainder of 2011, but in case you might have missed it, gold and silver had one of the most amazing years ever, reaching new highs and fully vindicating Bob Moriarty's prediction. He then managed to call the very top in silver in late April 2011 to the day.

Fast-forward to early 2015, when blue-chip stock market index bulls were out in full force because the S&P 500 had posted a solid gain in 2012, an astounding gain of over 30% in 2013, and another solid gain in 2014. Pretty much everybody was expecting the upward momentum to continue in 2015.

Ever willing to fill the role of contrarian when it's warranted, Robert Moriarty suggested that investors steer clear of the S&P 500 – which then proceeded to surprise everyone else by posting a slightly negative year.

Concurrent with his cautious tone on the blue-chip stock market index, Mr. Moriarty also advised staying away from bonds; it's not every day that a highly respected financial commentator says he's staying away from stocks and bonds.

And yet, Bob Moriarty was 100% correct about that. By the summer of 2016, the annual yield on the 10-year U.S. Treasury note had been pushed by the Federal Reserve all the way down to 1.37%. Mr. Moriarty was right: 2015 was not the right time to get into U.S. bonds.

In addition to his sector-based calls, Robert Moriarty is never afraid to make recommendations on specific companies – and these particular calls have frequently booked his readers a handsome profit. You see, Bob Moriarty has an edge over most commentators because he actually visits the companies and speaks with people in leadership positions.

To give you an example, Mr. Moriarty talked with the management and the technical teams at precious metals exploration and mining company Cayden Resources Inc. back in May of 2013. When I wrote about the company in May of that year, the stock price was $0.72. By October 2013, Cayden Resources Inc. was trading at $1.65.

Another company whose project Bob Moriarty visited is Pilot Gold Inc. From $1.30 per share in 2012 to $2.40 in January 2013, Mr. Moriarty and his followers enjoyed a terrific ride to the top of this company's gold-colored mountain.

What a difference it makes when a highly respected world traveler takes the time to visit the sites, speak with the people involved, and leverage his decades of experience in the field to help his fans and followers build their wealth and achieve their financial dreams.

But really, he's just getting started: his lifelong passion for uncovering the truth and getting to the heart of the markets is as strong and vital as ever. Looking toward the remainder of 2019, Robert Moriarty expects plenty of fireworks in the markets as he contends that the "everything bubble" has popped and silver is likely to outperform.

He's also expecting a whole lot of surprises, and so are we – but thankfully, we've got the wisdom, experience, and dedication of a true American hero, Mr. Bob Moriarty, to guide us along the way.
